Expanding Access, Inspiring Minds: A Guide to the James E. Cook Nature's Classroom Grant

James E. Cook

Established in 2022, the James E. Cook Nature's Classroom Grant honors the Chief Executive Officer of Western National Parks Association, known as Western National Parks (WNP), from 2011 to 2022. Dedicated to enhancing access to national parks for underrepresented K-12 youth, this grant provides essential funding for educators to bring the wonders of national parks into classrooms and offer transformative park experiences. Reflecting Jim Cook's commitment to educating youth and expanding access for underrepresented communities, WNP continues to foster a deep passion for our natural and cultural heritage in the next generation of park stewards.

Detailed information and eligibility criteria are provided on the pages that follow to guide the application process and support educators in fostering accessible, welcoming outdoor learning experiences for all.

APPLICATION PREPARATION

Before you start your application, here is what you need to know.

- Select: Choose the WNP-partner park you want to collaborate with to create your experience. Review the list of these parks here.
- Connect: Contact the park visitor center to get the name and contact information of the National Park Service staff member who will work with you to create your experience.
- Discuss: Talk with the park representative about the types of experiences offered by the park. Confirm whether the park can accommodate an oversized vehicle, such as a motor coach, and if there are any vehicle length restrictions.
- Choose: Decide on your park experience type: virtual classroom, in-classroom, or in-park.
- Confirm: If you selected an in-park experience, contact your local transportation provider to confirm vehicle availability, accessibility to the park (including length restrictions), and any restrictions or requirements for your planned field trip.

Now you are ready to apply!
